

Your school

and district must ensure their codes of conduct are in line with Chapter 222. And, each year, all Massachusetts high schools have to update their codes and involve school councils in the process.

Want to make sure your code of conduct measures up to the new state law? Compare it with the Checklist in the back (page 20).

Want to make sure your principal, superintendent, and school committee know what they need to do to keep their code in line with the law? Use the School Discipline Facts (page 1) and your data (page 14) to:

Hold a family forum about discipline.

Arrange a teacher working group on discipline.

Call for a meeting with your school and district leaders

Testify at a school committee meeting.

Write an op-ed in your local paper.

Want to make sure other families and students know their rights? Call the Lawyers' Committee to arrange a free Know-Your-Rights session.
